Hey Kids, Comics!

By Alex G. Malloy, with Bob Sodaro

Another year, another stack of comics to read, savor, and digest. As always, this editorial is being written as we close out another year, so as is our wont, we here at CVA are taking this moment to look over the year that was, and towards the year that is yet to emerge. Once again, this has been something of a banner year for our industry, for, in spite of some setbacks, we have seen a continued rise in interest in the Golden Age of comics with the action in this particular area being very, very hot.

Just as in previous years, this awareness is being fanned by a continued interest in large-scale auctions of high-grade, near-mint, and higher-graded comics as done by Comics, Guaranty, LLC (CGC), the leading comics pricing authority. Among the comics that are being included in this roll-out are the classic superheroes of World War II, which are as hot as can possibly be (especially the years spanning 1941 – 1945). Other genres that are also affected include Horror, Western, Movie, Disney, War, and even Romance comics from the Golden Age (in fact, Romance comics are so hot right now, that Marvel is issuing a series of specially-themed Romance comics which are due out in February, just in time for Valentine's Day, 2006.

As always, early issues of Marvel's Fantastic Four, Spider-Man, X-Men, and especially Silver Surfer are going though the roof, as are comics from across the street at DC where numerous titles, including, Green Lantern, Brave and Bold, Challengers of the Unknown, Detective, Flash, G. I. Combat, House of Mystery, House of Secrets, Justice League of America, My Greatest Adventure, Mystery in Space, Our Army at War, Our Fighting Forces, Phantom Stranger, various Showcase, Strange adventurers, Superman, Tales of the Unexpected, Wonder Women, and World's Finest, are burning up the charts.

Still, this marketplace is not just about either the Golden Age, or even simply about the past, as much as we are concerned with what has come before, we must also consider what is yet to come. Yes, yes this book is about the past, and the prices of old comics, it is actually the future of the industry that must truly interest us. For while the Direct Sales Market may have saved the industry during the '70s, and then defined it during the '80s, it was in the '90s that it all but hobbled us. Now that we have crossed over into the new millennium, we desperately need a new paradigm. Going forward, we need to find new ways of expanding our market and to bring new readers back into our world.

As we all know, when it was initially conceived, the direct sales market helped create the comics market as it exists today. However, as more and more publishers moved to create "direct sales only" titles and the and publishers began to rely exclusively on retailers to purchase non-returnable books based upon what they thought the book would do, and all of that, three to four months into the future. Well, folks, that's when the speculation market seriously started to take off.

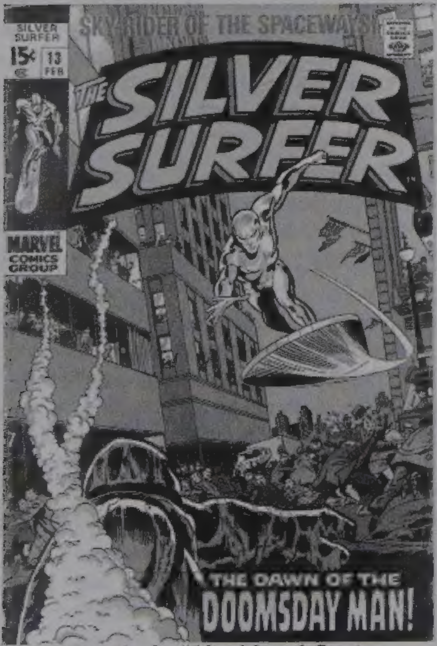
Sure, it was a seriously gravy time for the abnormally prescient "collectors" who were able to predict the market with uncanny accuracy. However, many of these speculators were only interested in turning a quick buck on their investment. Unfortunately, it was this action that started to spell out the beginning of the end for many casual readers. While the Direct Sales Marketed comics and Specialty comic shops were a boon for hard-core collectors, who actually wanted to collect every incarnation of X-Book or new Spider-Title, or serious fans who got off on Day-Glo, die-cut, refractive, sprinkle-coated, pre-bagged comics that are never removed and read, it was a virtual death-knell for casual readers.

You see it was these drop-by readers who have actually kept our industry alive in the past. It was these readers who relied upon spinner racks (with colorful signage shouting "Hey Kids! Comics!", just as does the title of our editorial this year) at their local convenience store for the next issue of Spider-Man, Superman, Archie, and all the rest. As the comics grew up and the stories became more sophisticated, and generation after generation of fan crossed over into the pro side of the industry, the stories themselves became more convoluted, and thus and more difficult for casual readers to follow.

As casual readers stopped casually picking up comic's readership declined, and newsstands stopped stocking comics. Thankfully, the industry has come back, but unfortunately, has never fully recovered and thus, comicbooks — which have always been considered kiddie fare — went from being a form of mass market pabulum have wound up falling into a niche market, and within a decade has become almost cottage, industry. Publishers are attempting to recapture that casual market by repackaging recently-published comicbook story arcs, reissuing them as graphic novels or digest comics, and then pitching the story as a newly-minted compilation to casual readers in book stores like Borders, Barnes and Noble, and on-line at Amazon.

Still, one would think that with all of the high-profile comicbook movies that have come out over the past few years, (including the numerous very profitable comicbook films of 2005; including, but not limited to A History of Violence, Batman Begins, Sin City, and The Fantastic Four) that there would be some sort of collateral increase in the sales of pulp-and-paper comics in Specialty Shops, only, it simply isn't so.



Silver Surfer #13 © Marvel Comics

For despite the success of these and other superhero films, according to retailers, there simply hasn't been any measurable spillover in the sales of the comics that initially spawned them. Interestingly enough, according to some comic shop owners, even industry-wide events like the annual Free Comicbook Day and comics that have been distributed in newspapers around the country, and Major League Baseball's "Spider-Man Day" back in 2004, have not resulted in an increase in sales either.

As the year began to draw to a close, there were a pair of diatribes against, not so much the industry, but the pros that populate the industry. First, Image Publisher, Erik Larsen, in his September 29th CBR column, One Fan's Opinion, called all of us on the carpet for our wholesale lack of originality and risk. During the esteemed Mr. Larsen's tirade against mediocrity he rather pointedly asked, "When are you going to stop sucking on the corporate tit? When are you going to (gasp) take a risk?" Before he does this, however, he called us Chicken, Pathetic, and well, worse for continuing to toil away on company-owned characters. (While we agree with him, we feel it necessary that he as part owner and publisher of Image hire creators to work on characters that are owned by the company, and other creators.)

While some were offended by the tone of his rant, we at CVA took a different tact. You see, while we feel that Erik's rant was overly vitriolic and unnecessarily scatological in nature, we really do understand (we believe) what Erik was attempting to say. As we se it, this was a half-time locker-room rant by an football coach who is seriously upset that his team is down by a touchdown and two conversions, and now they seem to have given up the ghost on ever winning. All the coach (Erik) is attempting to do here is light a fire under his team (us) to get the blood rushing back into our game, in order for us to produce the kind of results that he knows we are capable of producing.

The second rant came some three months later on November 28, and was that of John Byrne on his forum Byrne Robotics. Here, Mr. Byrne reminisced about Marvel's "good old days" and then he posted a challenge to the House that Stan, Jack and Steve built "So, hey, Marvel" he posted "How about some real innovation. The 400th turn on Days of Future Past isn't innovative" Byrne then went on to point out that Frank Miller's turn on Daredevil made it innovative and memorable, to simply riff on what Miller did was no big deal. "Shock and Suspense, as Hitchcock pointed out, are two different things." He said. "As are Sensationalism and Controversy. And in both cases, the first one is easy. The second one takes work. And talent."

Byrne wound up his post by issuing the following challenage "Let's see some new ideas, 'House'. At least as new as what Lee, Kirby and Ditko gave us when they created the company you're merrily plundering and pillaging." (For the moment, we'll put aside the minor poiht that this observation came from a man that has given us reboots on Superman, Spider-Man, the Fantastic Four, as well as several other characters that he has famously "taken over" in order to return them to their former glory; and — for now — agree with his main point.)

Yes, both men have a serious point. So long as we continue to rehash old plot lines, revisit old story ideas, re-run, clone, and replicate all that which has gone on before, do so on company-owned characters, and then continue to do so in an ever-shrinking market, cut off from casual readers, and a public that still thinks that comics are produced for kids (and are aghast when they learn that they are not); we are doomed.

Still, in spite of what may sound like doom and gloom, we, as always, we are fans of comicbooks and extremely optimistic about our future, and feel that anything that promotes the industry is ultimately good for us all. Looking out to the coming year, DC is planning a yearlong, weekly series that they promise will forever alter the future of their universe (much as Marvel's House of M was slated to do with Marvel's Mutant titles). While we are not certain that this is quite the way to go about it (either House of M style or the way DC is planning to do so), but we are interested in the outcome. Once again we thank our publisher as well as all of our readers for keeping us in print, as well as all of the hard-working professionals that bring us the on-going adventures of our favorite characters in our beloved medium. See you all in the funnypapers!

Mark Texeira

Interview by Bob Sodaro

While the name Mark Texeira may not be as familiar to many fans as perhaps he should be, it is not because he hasn't been around. His list of credits reads like a quick run-through of industry hit comicbook titles. He has worked on Warlord, The Swamp Thing movie adaptation, and Hex in the '80s for DC Comics. He also had a loose apprenticeship under Richard Buckler, Sr., and helped with backgrounds on Superman vs. Shazam and other titles in the late '70s.

It was at the "tender" age of 19 when he first broke into the industry and worked on Powerlords, a line of He-Man Mattel toy mini-comics, and the T.H.U.N.D.E.R Agents Magazine for JC Comics. Many years later, he found himself at Marvel working on titles like the movie adaptation for the Bukaroo Banzai film, Punisher, Wolverine, the original Sabretooth series, Ghost Rider issues #1-24, as well as painting a 40-page Spider-Man graphic novel with writer Kurt Busiek.

He also worked at Image on Union, and a 2-issue creator-owned title named Pscythe, which he hopes to continue at some point. For Dark Horse comics he has worked on Legacy of Evil and Conan.

Outside of comics, he painted the second Public Enemy album cover for Def Jam Records, articles for New York magazine, and quite a bit of advertising for a year with Neal Adams' Continuity.

Most recently he has been asked to not only revisit Wolverine, but beginning in '06 he will be working on Ghost Rider again.

Before getting into the business professionally, he attended the High School of Art and Design in Manhattan. He also attended the School of Visual Arts. Afterwards, he attended the Art Students' League for two years painting nudes and still lifes.

As a kid, he got into comics the way most of us did, "whenever I had a quarter I'd run to the stores and buy books. I loved the escapism they provided throughout my childhood. They also tapped into my love of drawing. I remember the early Marvel TV-animations of the '60s." He cites these comics as having fueled his love for the medium. "My favorite titles were Spider-Man, Fantastic Four, Conan, Superman, Batman, and Flash. I hated Archies, but would pretend to be interested when girls were reading them. Good thing too, as he—by his own admission—married a Betty.

* * * * * *

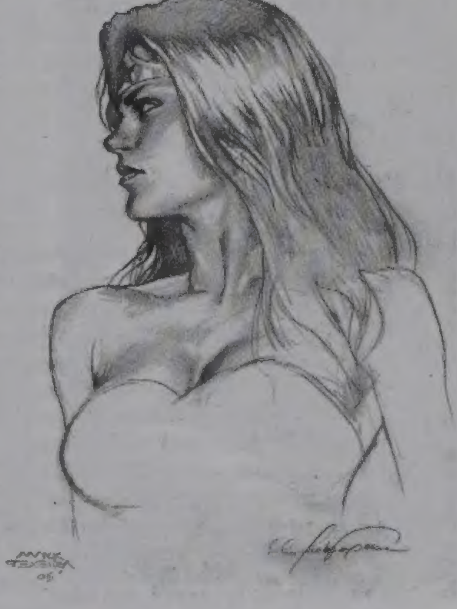
Bob: So, what are you working on right now?

Mark: I'm working on Wolverine #40 (this interview was conducted in early January 2006); Kaare Andrews and I are working as a team. He's doing breakdowns and I'm doing finishings.

Bob: Which do you prefer? Do you prefer working from…

Mark: I'd rather pencil and ink all my work.

Bob: Do you ever get the chance to do that any more? It seems like the business is like a factory these days, everyone is doing very specific things these days. Do you ever really get the chance to strut your own stuff anymore?



Wonder Woman sketch by Mark Texeira

Mark: Marvel is very corporate so they don't want to leave too many responsibilities in one artist's hands. In case the artist has trouble or something.

Bob: Yeah, like he flakes or something.

Mark: Yeah, that's a real concern. You can understand that. So I'm basically doing my gig. My 9-5.

Bob: So do you have an exclusive contract with Marvel?

Mark: No; until they do, I still kind of pick up work wherever I can. Upper Deck Cards, paperback covers, what have you for other companies. As long as I stay on time which is pretty easy on Wolverine because it's a character that I've known for some time.

Bob: So your next big thing is that you're going to Ghost Rider, I understand.

Mark: That's the rumor, and it's the only one that I can go on right now, and Axel Alanzo says that…I was uncomfortable doing finishes any more over Kaare, and he said, "If I let you have the covers, could you do it?" and I said "Yeah, I love it, I want to paint covers, and pencil and ink covers, so I'll do it for that consideration, I mean for that promise." So Ghost Rider seems to be the thing…except that since it's not an on-going series, its not an easy switchover there might be a hiatus. I don't know. I'm hoping that it won't be too long a wait because I get antsy, and I'll start calling up DC and the other companies to see if they have anything available. I hope that I won't have to go that way. Although Marvel's been pretty good with me for the whole year, but I haven't been asking all the other editors for work because; one, working under the editor-in-chief, you think, that he's watching out for your best interests. We'll see. I'll have to ask tomorrow, but right now Ghost Rider is…although I don't know how many issues I'll have to ask that also, and again, I'll assume it will be a year, it might just be a story arc for paperback that tends to be five issues?

Bob: That's like five or six issues.

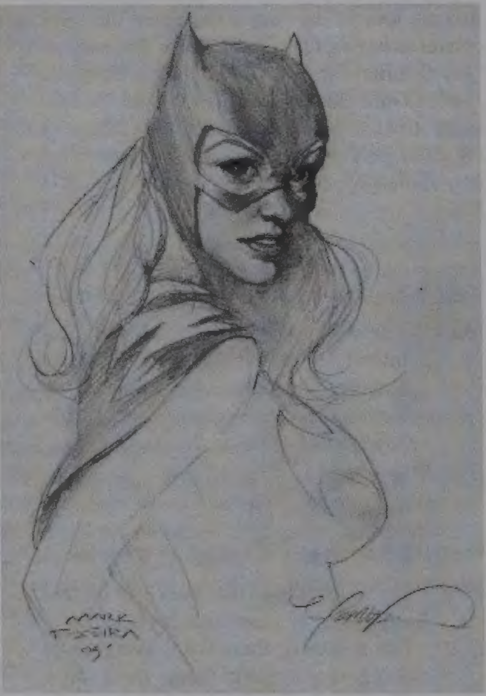
Mark: It could go anywhere from five to a year. They like the team, because Wolverine after Romita and Janson the orders were about 50,000 and the third issue that we got out went to 80,000 and recently the orders were about 100,000, so obviously, something is kicking in there. It is just that I don't like being reduced to being just an inker, when I'm used to doing pencils and inks. Well, I mean, I'll do it, it gets easy…

Bob: So you work out of a studio in your home then?

Mark: Yes, every two weeks I try to go in, but this is the last issue and I kind of want to do it better than I've been doing. Orders have been proving that it's just as good as it needs to be to keep it going and the artwork going, so I think that its something that most freelancers go through. They know they're finishing up their last issue and you try to put your last final zing on it. Its your final not and you want people to remember your swan song.

Bob: So you rather do full pencils and inks?

Mark: Yes, full pencils and inks like I did back



Batgirl sketch by Mark Texeira

in the '90s

Bob: Will you be doing that — full pencils and inks on Ghost Rider, do you know?

Mark: They're letting me do finishing inks, but they're letting me, and this is what Alel (Alonzo—the series editor) promised me, is to do the actual covers on Ghost Rider. That's the only reason I'll do the finishing inks over Javier (Saltares), otherwise I'd be pressing them to do my own pencils and inks.

Bob: So you're going to be penciling but not inking?

Mark: No, finishing inks, and covers. Only because the covers on Wolverine were done by a very good artist named Kaare Andrews. He's been doing great computerized covers, and they've been looking pretty good, but the thing is you get frustrated being the art team. They do that a lot with lead titles, they want to make sure that the covers don't get in the way of the art.

Bob: So you've been doing this for quite a long time. Been in the business for a while. Are there any characters you prefer to do, any style you prefer to do more than any other style?

Mark: I've been looking lately at other books that I don't think I'll be able to...honestly, I've been with Marvel for a whole year, I started with last year's Punisher Annual, which is a book that I'd love to stay on because after Frank Miller doing Punisher and Daredevil in the mid-'80s it's a book I could just stay with and not worry about leaving, but there are other books like Captain America, and the Fantastic Four which I never had the chance to do. Yeah, there are a bunch of characters that are out there that people don't see me necessarily with but most recently I have had interest in doing female characters like Vamperlla, Black Widow would be a book, Electra would be another book that I would like to take a four-issue stint on, to hone my skills, or just enjoy being on for a while. Again. Because I left Black Panther back in the late '90s I just dropped the book because the schedule was too much and I couldn't do pencils, inks, and tones; five pages a week and covers. I just abandoned the book and went over to Vamperlla for a year. I think I'm there to time test my dedication to the company after a while I hope to I'll warm up to them after another year and be able to ask, or at least put in a request for a product that I would love to be a part of.

Bob: Well, if you had your dream project, what would it be?

Mark: Like I said, any female major character. Of course, you asked me a dream project. I started a dream project with Image. It was going to be a four-to-five issue arc, but I didn't have the money to sit back and do all four issues, I had to get back on regular books because I have a mortgage to pay. The book was title Psyche. It was a two-issue run with Image, and the orders did well they did about 7,000 orders. It was in black and white, and if it were in color it would have sold more. Of course I don't have the campaign that Marvel or DC has to promote it.

Bob: Oh, is that what you meant when you said that you didn't have the money to promote the book? You have to do your own promotion at Image?

Mark: Yes, exactly. I mean they can always take out ads for you, but you have to go out there and get the interviews and do you own things for your creator-owned book. When I was halfway through my second issue I realized that I needed to start finding work again. It was my first time that I was writing, penciling and inking. So that was fun. That would be my dream project. The fans liked the series, but it wasn't much of a series because it was only two issues. It was a debut and now it just sort of sitting on a shelf until I get some kind of backing or interest in other ways.

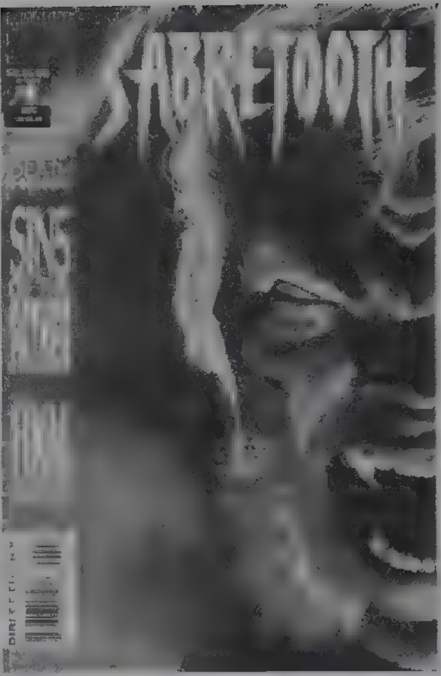
Bob: So, it hasn't actually appeared yet?

Mark: No, it has. Two issues came out a year ago, and they did well, they were actually in the top 100 in Diamond's distributing list. It was in the top 40. Thing is, the checks come six months later and by that time you're already halfway through a Marvel series. You can't sit around and wait for checks. Especially living in New York, or in the tri-state area.

Bob: That's right you have to pay the bills. You know, we talked about this a bit before, and I want to go back to this, only because John Carbonaro is an old friend of mine, and he has always spoken very highly of you. He loves your work and was bragging that you were one of the guys on his team when he was publishing The T.H.U.N.D.E.R. Agents. I've always loved those characters and feel that its just a shame that no one is publishing a regular series featuring the Agents. So, I have to ask, how was it to work on that title back then?



Sabretooth #4 © Marvel Comics - cover art by Mark Texeira

Mark: Oh that was the beginning of my career. Back then, all I had done for DC—I was 19, I was just getting out of college—I did come House of Mystery stuff, I think I had just finished doing some Warlord stuff after Mike Grell, and just wrapped up a Swamp Thing annual. I had started over at DC first, back in the early '80s. Then John was part of a crew that was in Staten Island. We were all sort of sharing space up there. John was a friend of Pat Gabriele's, and he came by and said that he had just purchased this license. It was a good investment I think, and anyway, we went ahead and did the first issue. He made some money, again, I don't know what happened to the money, but it did well for him, I'm sure. He got enough attention, but there wasn't enough to continue doing that magazine, or go forward with any other continuing series but it really was a series that I most likely would definitely been part of if it continued. So yeah, being part of Wally Wood's world part of the legacy like that was cool.

Bob: Do you see a difference between then and now other than now you have a mortgage, and a family to feed and back then it was just you?

Mark: No matter what they sold back then no matter what it was you did stories that you loved, just being in the industry. There were no royalties back '70s going into the early '80s so you knew, most likely that you were never going to go anywhere but you could always depend on it while you did other things, like posters and paperbacks and what have you. Now it is so royalty-driven and so money-driven that if the book didn't sell above 40,000 copies its already looking at being canceled. Kids are in it to make high royalties. So it's lost a lot of its charm over the last 10 or 20 years. I'm in the belief you don't stick around if you're not in love with it, of contributing to the modern mythology of comics.

Bob: Do you think that you could handle more than just the one book a month?

Mark: I'm trying to stay out of trouble by not having them clash with each other so some editor won't get jealous. So at this point I'm waiting for Marvel to give me the right kind of book. At this point it is steady, and I'm not going to complain, so if I go another year of finishing after this, I'm probably going to take the next available offer that allows me more creative outlet, because lately I feel that I've turned into an inker, and I don't like it.

Bob: So you want to go back to penciling and inking?

Mark: Yeah, I want to be able to interpret it and add to it. The painting is different when you work over another penciler, I even read the script and said, "I would never pick that shot." But it is a book and it's business and you have to play along. So my stint at Marvel for the past year is just trying to stay on schedule and I've been able to do that 80% of the time, and basically trying to prove to them that I can do it. I don't really know of any other way to pencil and ink and show them that I can stay on target, other than to just stay on a regular book no matter what they give me. I'm thinking, on Ghost Rider, to re-pencil some of the pencils that they give to me on other boards and re-inking them so that I can get back to pencils as a penciler and show Marvel that I can clearly pencil and ink my own book in a given week and get five pages a week. Because, frankly, lately, I've been a little frustrated, but that's OK.

Bob: So you still like the business?

Mark: I'm still in love with the idea of fantasy illustration but my scope is much wider now I want to get involved with writing my own book. I don't know when I'll have that chance, maybe in the summertime and get back on self-published. I'd love to be more involved with publishing in terms of just being creative, and being a little more involved in keeping the vehicle creative. But I don't think I'm going to get that opportunity because there are so many positions up in Marvel that you have to prove your self to.

GRADING GUIDE

In David Brin's science fiction–fantasy novel, The Practice Effect, things improve with use. You start with a crudely made tool and keep using it until it becomes a fine instrument. If our world worked that way, you could read your Golden Age comics as often as you liked and they would just get better looking each time. Unfortunately, our world does not work that way, and reading your comics (along with just about everything else) causes comics to deteriorate.

Even if you could protect your comics from external light, heat, cold, moisture, pressure and everything else, you couldn't protect them from their own paper. Most comic books were printed on pulp paper, which has a high acid content. This means that the paper slowly turns brittle with age, no matter what you do to it, short of special museum-style preservation.

Very old, well-preserved comics are coveted collector's items. In most cases, people did not save their comic books for future generations. They read them and discarded them. Comic books were considered harmless ephemera for children. When these children outgrew their comics, their parents often threw them away. If everybody kept all of their comics, comics would not be valuable because everybody would have them scattered about the house!

The value of any comic depends on scarcity, popularity and condition. Scarcity increases with age and popularity depends on the whim of the public — only condition automatically decreases with age. Newer comics are generally available in near-mint condition, so newer comics in lesser condition have little collector potential. However, older comics are scarce, so they are still collectible in less than near-mint condition, but the value is obviously less. This is a basic tenet of all collectibles. A car is more valuable with its original paint. A baseball card is more valuable if it has not been marred by bicycle spokes. Coke bottles, stamps, coins, and toys in good condition are all more valuable than their abused counterparts. Comic books are no exception.

New comic book collectors should learn how to assess the prospective value of a comic in order to protect themselves from being fleeced by unscrupulous dealers or hucksters. Yet, a majority of dealers, especially store owners, can be considered reliable judges of comic grade. Because comic retail may be their primary source of income, certain dealers are particularly adept at noticing comic book imperfections, especially in issues they intend to purchase. As such, hobbyists and collectors must understand that dealers need to make a minimum profit on their investments. Buying collectible comics entails certain risks. Therefore, dealers must scrutinize a comic to determine if the particular book will stand a chance of resale. Well-preserved comics are invariably more desirable to dealers because they are more desirable to collectors.

There are eight standard comic grades: mint, near mint, very fine, fine, very good, good, fair, and poor. Clearly, these eight grades could be split into even finer categories when haggling over an exceptionally rare or coveted Golden Age comic. In most cases, however, comic books can be evaluated using these eight standard grades. The values listed in this book are all for comics in "Near Mint" condition. The grading/price chart given at the back of this book should be used to adjust this price for comics in different grades.

For many Golden Age comic issues, there are no known mint condition examples, but most issues have a few near mint copies in the hands of collectors. Many of these come from a few "pedigree" sources like the famous mile-high collection. There are, however, some issues where no known example is in near mint condition. To be consistent, the value listed in this price guide is still for a "near mint" copy, even if no such copy exists. The grading/price chart in the back will still yield a price for the lesser grades that actually exist. And, who knows, maybe there is another treasure trove of old comics somewhere — maybe you'll even be the one who finds it!

Mint (CGC 9.5 or above)

Finding old comics in mint condition is almost impossible because of inferior storage techniques and materials. In the early days of collecting, few people anticipated that the very boxes and bags in which they stored their comics were contributing to decay. Acid from bags, backing boards, and boxes eat away at many comics.. Mint condition comics usually fetch prices higher than price guide listings. Mint comics can sell for 120% or more of the listed price.

Mint comics are perfect comics and allow no room for imperfections. Pages and covers must be free of discoloration, wear, and wrinkles. A mint comic is one that looks like it just rolled off the press. Staples and spine must meet perfectly without cover "rollover." The cover must be crisp, bright, and trimmed perfectly. The staples must not be rusted and the cover should not have any visible creases. The interior pages of a mint comic are equally crisp and new. A mint comic must not show any signs of age or decay. Because of the paper stock used on many older comics, acid and oxygen cause interior pages to yellow and flake.

Near Mint (CGC 9.4)

A near mint comic and a mint comic are close siblings, with their differences slight, even to an experienced eye. Most of the new comics on the shelf of the local comic shop are in near mint condition. These are comics that have been handled gingerly to preserve the original luster of the book. Near mint comics are bright, clean copies with no major or minor defects. Slight stress lines near the staples and perhaps a very minor printing defect are permissible. Corners must still be sharp and devoid of creases. Interior pages of newsprint stock should show almost no discernible yellowing. Near mint comics usually trade for 100% of the listed price, with just a small discount for slightly lower grades.

Very Fine (CGC 8.0)

A very fine comic is one that is routinely found on the shelves and back issue bins of most good direct market comic shops. This grade comic has few defects, none of them major. Stress around the staples of a very fine comic are visible but not yet radical enough to create wrinkles. Both the cover and interior pages should still be crisp and sharp, devoid of flaking and creases. Interior pages may be slightly yellowed from age.

Most high-quality older comics graded as very fine can obtain 80-90% of listed prices. More, if the comic is the highest-graded comic known to exist.

Fine (CGC 6.0)

Fine comics are often issues that may have been stored carefully under a bed or on a shelf by a meticulous collector. This grade of comic is also very desirable because it shows little wear and retains much of its original sharpness. The cover may be slightly off center from rollover. The cover retains less of its original gloss and may even possess a chip or wrinkle. The corners should be sharp but may also have a slight crease. Yellowing begins to creep into the interior pages of a comic graded as fine.

Fine comics are respectable additions to collections and sell for about 40-60% of the listed price.

Very Good (CGC 4.0)

A very good comic may have been an issue passed around or read frequently. This grade is the common condition of older books. Its cover will probably have lost some luster and may have two or three creases around the staples or edges. The corners of the book may begin to show the beginnings of minor rounding and chipping, but it is by no means a damaged or defaced comic. Comics in very good condition sell for about 30-40% of listed price.

Good (CGC 2.0)

A good comic is one that has been well read and is beginning to show its age. Although both front and back covers are still attached, a good grade comic may have a number of serious wrinkles and chips. The corners and edges of this grade comic may show clear signs of rounding and flaking. There should be no major tears in a good comic nor should any pages be clipped out or missing. Interior pages may be fairly yellowed and brittle. Good comics sell for about 15-25% of the listed price.

Fair (CGC 1.0)

A fair comic is one that has definitely seen better days and has considerably limited resale value for most collectors. This comic may be soiled and damaged on the cover and interior. Fair comics should be completely intact and may only be useful as a reading copy, or a comic to lend to friends. Fair comics sell for about 10-20% of the listed price.

Poor

Comics in poor condition are generally unsuitable for collecting or reading because they range from damaged to unrecognizable. Poor comics may have been water damaged, attacked by a small child, or worse, perhaps, gnawed on by the family pet! Interior and exterior pages may be cut apart or missing entirely. A poor comic sells for about 5-15% of the listed price.

Sniffing Out Grades

Despite everything that is mentioned about comic grading, the process remains relative to the situation. A comic that seems to be in very good condition may actually be a restored copy. A restored copy is generally considered to be in between the grade it was previous to restoration and the grade it has become. Many collectors avoid restored comics entirely.

Each collector builds his collection around what he believes is important. Some want every issue of a particular series or company. Others want every issue of a favorite artist or writer. Because of this, many collectors will purchase lower-grade comics to fill out a series or to try out a new series. Mint and near mint comics are usually much more desirable to hardcore collectors. Hobbyists and readers may find the effort and cost of collecting only high-grade comics financially prohibitive.

Getting artists or writers to autograph comics has also become a source of major dispute. Some collectors enjoy signed comics and others consider those very comics defaced! The current trends indicate that most collectors do enjoy signed comics. A signature does not usually change the grade of the comic.

As mentioned, comic grading is a subjective process that must be agreed upon by the buyer and seller. Buyers will often be quick to note minor defects in order to negotiate a better price. Sellers are sometimes selectively blind to their comic's defects.

CVA GRADING GUIDE

Grading comics is an objective art. This grading guide outlines the many conditions you should look for when purchasing comics, from the highest grade and top condition to the lowest collectible grade and condition. Your own comics will fall into one of these categories. A more complete description and our comments on comics grades can be found inside. We would like to point out, however, that no reader or advertiser is required to follow this or any other standard. All prices in Comics Values Annual are for comics in Near Mint condition. Happy collecting!

Mint: Perfect, pristine, devoid of any trace of wear or printing or handling flaws. Covers must be fully lustrous with sharply pointed corners. No color fading. Must be well centered. Many "rack" comics are not "Mint" even when new.

Near Mint: Almost perfect with virtually no wear. No significant printing flaws. Covers must be essentially lustrous with sharp corners. Spine is as tight as new. In older comics, minimal color fading is acceptable, as is slight aging of the paper. Most price guides, including CVA, quote prices in this grade.

Very Fine: Well preserved, still pleasing in appearance. Small signs of wear, most particularly around the staples. Most luster is readily visible. Corners may no longer be sharp, but are not rounded. Typical of a comic read only a few times and then properly stored.

Fine: Clean, presentable, with noticeable signs of wear. Some white may show through enamel around staples, and moderate rounding of corners. No tape or writing damage. Book still lies flat.

Very Good: A well worn reading copy with some minor damage such as creasing, small tears or cover flaking. Some discoloration may be evident, with obvious wear around the staples. Little luster remains, and some rolling of the spine may be seen when comic is laid flat on the table.

Good: A fully intact comic with very heavy wear. Tears, cover creases and flaking, and rolled spine will all be evident. No tape repairs present. Only very scarce or valuable issues are collected in this state.

The adjoining price table shows the prices for the other collectible grades which correspond to any "near mint" price given in this book.
